"We used Key Performance for two kinds of Project Management training. The first series was Project Management for Executives, the second was Project Management for IT Professionals. Participants were very pleased with the material and the workshop format which provided an opportunity for team members from different disciplines to work together. Those who participated now have a much better understanding of project management. The training was very effective. Key Performance has been very accommodating in both scheduling and customization to meet our project management training needs. They are still doing a great job for us!"

KEY PERFORMANCE

A Global Training and Consulting Company

Excellence in Project Management
and Six Sigma

Key Performance

From its creation in 2002, Key Performance has grown into a premier project management training company with offices in both the U.S. and in Europe.

Our mission is to make project management into a distinct competitive advantage for our clients.

Key Value

Projects rarely fail because of technical reasons; you can always find a sharp technical person to solve the technical problems. Rather, project failure is caused by a lack of soft skills; planning, coordination, project communication, quality assurance and project control.

In most companies, projects fail for the following top ten reasons:

1. Poor Planning
2. Objectives Not Clear
3. Changes in Scope
4. Failure to Heed Warning Signs
5. Poorly Defined Roles & Responsibilities
6. Unrealistic Expectations
7. Lack of Management Support
8. Poor Communications
9. Conflicts Between Departments or Individuals
10. Inadequate Resources

Project success should not hinge upon one specific project manager, but rather on the company's commitment to and procedures for positive and repeatable results. Effective project management generates a better bottom line, improved cost control and happier customers.

Key Performance can help your company get there!

“The online course was just right for me. It allowed me the flexibility to complete training without taking time away from work, which was not an option at this time.”

John Anderson,
US Army Medical Department

“This course, “Project Management for every Executive”, is very useful and I think every executive should take this class for the best of the company.”
